NOMINATIONS AND BALLOTS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE BERALD.]

PHILADELPHIA, May 8, 1878. The State Convention of the national party asmbled here to-day in a very quiet way, with 130 ntes present, nominally representing all counties in the State but six. It was e, earnest, thoughtful men, honestly anxious reform, counterbalanced by a number of wild, riolent revolutionists of a Communistic tendency. and both delegations came into the State Central Committee, called the Convention to order in a somewhat peculiar speech, which was dein the manner of a practised participant in ical bodies, and was vigorously applauded.

AR. DEWERS' SPEECE.

GENTLEMEN-As chairman of your committee the duty devolves upon me to call this Convention to order. In devolves upon me to call this Convention to order. In times past, counting not by years but by a few short months, there were "none as poor to do us reverence." As representatives of the laboring interests we were despised, as the advocates of financial reform we were scoffed as ridicated and revited. Less then two years ago a mere hundful of men, but honest and cannest, assembled at tharristing and organized a party in the interest of hundful of men, but honest and cannest, assembled at tharristing of the laboring and present and remeptivania gave 5,000 votes in 1876 to that ticket. In Angust, 1877, a lew representatives of the laboring men met in convention at farrisburg, adopted a platform and nominated a ticket, and shortly after other representatives of the laboring men met in convention at itarisburg, adopted a platform and nominated a ticket. The principles and objects of both parties were recognized as the same, and the result was a fusion of both organizations into the greenback labor party of Pennsylvania. The fact that inside of oid party lines there is no hope for relief was becoming recognized, and the 5 GEV votes for Gooper and Carey in 1876 increased to nearly $5,000 votes for Bentley, Rimerson and Wright in 1877, and this, too, after a campaign of but little over six weeks in length. The magnitude of this result can be better estimated when consideration is taken of the late that at the opening of this result can be better estimated when consideration is taken of the late that at the opening of the late fall of the late of the

THE PIRST EXCITEMENT.

After his address the prosiding officer declared the nominations for temporary chairman to be in order. A confused and lively discussion took place over this delphia delegates came to the surface. It required all the tact of the presiding officer to preeven before they had organized. Finally the roll was called, in the midst of constant interruptions, and David Kirk, an oil merchant of Pittsburg, was elected temporary chairman, receiving 126 votes, against 84 for Powderly, the radical labor candidate. Mr. Kirk, a man of some attempth of character, made the following speech:—

GRENNACKERS SLIGUTED.

The Committee on Credentials was chosen without much difficulty, and the Convention adjourned for an hour to give the committee time to settle its delicate job of reconciling the differences among the. Philadelphia delegates. After reassembling, the committee still remaining out, speeches were intended to from several labor and woman's rights agitators.

When the Committee on Credentials presented its report it was found to have endeavored to pour oil upon the troubled waters by favoring the admission of the Philadelphia labor delegation entire, and only ten greenback men. This proposition was received with great enthusiasm, and the report was adopted.

NENTLY ORGANIZED" LAST EVENING AT COOPER INSTITUTE.

The General Committee of the new national party. as it is called, held a meeting for the purpose of making a permanent organization last evening at room 24 Cooper Union. With the exception of a few very young men the most of the people who signalized themselves last evening as members of the new na-tional party were professional local politicians who had been left out in the cold for years or belonged to the class called "professional strikers." Ex-Judgo Josephimsen occupied the chair, and Mr. Marcus Hanton acted as secretary. Daniel Sheehan was appointed Joachimson occupied the chair, and Mr. Marcus Hanion acted as secretary. Daniel Sheehan was appointed sergeant-at-arms. The meeting was hardly organized when several persons came to the door, who were relieved admittance. These persons claimed to be regular delegates to the Convention and insisted on being admitted. The sergeant-at-arms was instructed to lot no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified ticket of no man in unless he had a properly certified to their now one was seriously hurt. The police were called in on the complaint of George G. Banzor, and A. A. Corsey was arrested and locked up in the Frith aftered station house for the night. After the removal of the oboxious individual three sergeants-of-arms were appointed to protees the door. Their names, as announced by the chair, were o'Reilly, O'sullivan and Patterson. Taese three guardsmen held the door against all comers, and the services of the police were not again called in requisition. The roil was called and seventy-seven out of 150 delegates answered to their names. This call was challeged, and amid many cries such as "Blow his brans out?" "Let him have it?" "I'll a you, Marcus, it you dare!" the secretary read the roll a second time. It was found and be secretary read the roll a second time. It was found that but sixty-three responded on the second call and not enough for a quorum. In the meantime fhomas J. Creamer made a speech, in which he denounced the existing controllers of the new national party in this city and retired, twelve others going with him.

PARSON SMITH. APPEABANCE IN NEWTOWN, L. I.
The colored aristocrasy of Newtown, L. I., is agistruction of a newly established church and involves "yaller gals" in all the country round about. The present little village has a considerable colored population, and has always until lately been free from any of the sectarian differences that are to be found wherever there are two or more churches in one been sufficient to accommodate all the worship pers, but some three months ago the Rev. that the only colored theology there iog pers, but some three months ago the Rev. George Smith visited Newtown, and on learning that the only colored theology there was fresbyterian he resolved to devote himself to the enlargement of the Methodist consus. Beginning with a handini of people who were attracted by the neverty he conducted a zeries of meetings in the quantu hitle court bouse, and soon had a devoted congregation. "He was 'de bery meet pounder ob de Gospel dat ober exterted sinners to impontance in Newtown," said one sorrowing member last evening, "an' if he'd only laid low he mout a zerbed de Loru well." He was vigorous and energetic, shouting in the pupit at the top of his voice and beating up recruits for a Methodist church with zeal and zuccess. All went smoothly notil last Thursday. The church had been organized and trustees had been chosen, and the Rev. Mr. Smith had engaged to preach every Sunday in the court house until more suitable quarters could be obtained. The weekly collections had been sufficient to defray the very moderate expenses, and a cuncert had been arranged to rake a zero of money that should be the nucleus of a building fund. The concert was given and proved a success, but sundry gossips in the andlence began wagiing their tongues as they noticed that Mr. Smith was especially attentive to Miss Martha Jane Muchell.

A REVOLUTION.

Whee Mr. Smith first appeared in Newtown it was generally understood that he was a widower, though no one count be found who would testify to having heard nim say so. A little later it was found or so the gossips said) that he lived with a comely colored woman in Williamsburg, and some of the most curious of his people had questioned him about it. The explanation he made was that the woman kept house for him. Still later was it whispered that Mr. Smith had a wife living in New York, and to this soft impeachment he at lass pleaded gailty. This was the camming fact that made his attentions to Miss Martha Jane Mitchell so behoon, and the Newtown costips were busy about it oarly on Thursday morn
